

Electronic Medical Records....there is risk

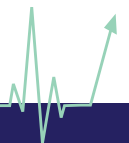

In the beginning, EMR salesmen touted their system's ability to code a physician's E & M services. Then they began to caution the physician to only use the assigned codes as a "suggestion." Now we are seeing that there are many problems inherent in E & M coding.

Auditors are targeting EMR overcoding, cloned reports, and default responses.

If you're not 100% sure that your system is set up to correctly code and document, this is a good time to look at those issues from an auditor's point of view. Before the government does.

Physician Services has over 30 years of experience in medical billing, coding and consultation. We bill off of many of the top EMR's. We've seen the problems that a poorly set up system can create. If you're interested in a review of the end products of your system, we can arrange for a private auditor to review its reports and coding. It's always better to be proactive than reactive.
